

REQUEST FOR PROPOSAL FROM THE
WORLD INITIATIVE FOR SOY IN HUMAN HEALTH
(WISHH)
A Program of the American Soybean Association

I. DATE

August 24, 2021

II. PROJECT OBJECTIVE

This request for proposal (RFP) will identify a communication expert to develop and implement a communications campaign that will be part of a comprehensive education and communication approach utilized by the American Soybean Association's (ASA) World Initiative for Soy in Human Health (WISHH) Program. The campaign should include fact based, non-partial video, social media, electronic newsletter articles, conference materials, conference booth design and/or written report content that will be used to communicate ASA/WISHH messaging. Communications will be used to inform and proactively engage with key audiences about: 1) soy's role in global health and global food security; and 2) long-term market development in developing and emerging economies. The project's purpose is to provide key leaders in the global food security conversation, both domestically and internationally, information about the value of U.S. soy (nutrition, sustainability, quality, etc.), and to highlight ASA/WISHH's work in developing and emerging markets while showcasing U.S. soy's commitment to global food security. In addition, outreach and engagement targeting state soybean organizations will help equip state staff and grower leaders with the knowledge and tools to specifically amplify these messages and priorities on the state level. This focused and issue-oriented education of key audiences and state soybean organizations will help increase profit opportunities for soy growers and help lift the U.S. soybean industry to a higher level of global competitiveness.

III. ORGANIZATON BACKGROUND

The American Soybean Association (ASA) was founded in 1920 by soybean farmers and extension workers to promote soy for high protein applications in developmental settings. Overseas activities initiated in the mid-1950s, and to date ASA has worked in over 80 countries. The World Initiative for Soy in Human Health (WISHH) Program was founded in 2000 to expand the work of the American Soybean Association (ASA) in developing emerging markets to improve health, nutrition, and food security, building the groundwork for future markets of soy. WISHH provides services in food technology, business development, nutrition services, and program and proposal development. WISHH expertise extends its network into additional areas, such as aquaculture and animal feed.

ASA/WISHH connects trade and development to strengthen agricultural value chains in emerging markets, creating trade and long-term demand for U.S. soy. Trade can improve lives worldwide for both farmers and consumers. U.S. soy trade in emerging markets is pivotal to improve accessibility, affordability, and acceptability of high-quality plant and animal-sourced proteins in developing economies. Rising incomes in emerging economies generate further opportunity for trade. ASA/WISHH builds opportunity for long-term trade by improving agricultural value chains, human and animal nutrition, and farmer net incomes. ASA/WISHH initiatives broadly fit in two arenas: (1) trade-building long-term early-stage market development, and (2) trade-building international agriculture and economic development. The St. Louis-based Program operates in sub-Saharan Africa, Asia, and Central America.

ASA/WISHH offers over six years of proven feed sector capacity and decades of accumulated knowledge from ASA programs. Principal approaches include market and economic assessments, technical assistance and capacity building, food and feed trials and demonstrations, farmer field days, youth mentorship programs, food and feed value chain development, and market linkages.

ASA/WISHH achieves its mission by working in close partnership with: (1) the public sector (e.g., USDA, USAID, U.S. land grant universities, and host country governments), (2) the private sector (e.g., trade associations: Qualified State Soybean Boards and U.S. Soybean Export Council), and (3) private voluntary organizations. The Program draws upon the resources and experience of these partners and the services of a cadre of ASA/WISHH consultants with technical expertise in agricultural, international, and commercial development spheres. ASA/WISHH relies on decades of experience in food commercial development and agricultural development programming. The Program takes pride in its growing portfolio of success with U.S. government-funded projects, including USDA (Food for Progress, McGovern-Dole, Global Broad-Based Initiative, Foreign Market Development, Market Access Program, Emerging Markets Program, and Quality Samples Program) and USAID funding in both prime and sub-recipient capacities. ASA/WISHH has also attracted both private sector and other complementary funding sources from various donors to build on and leverage core funding from Qualified State Soybean Boards.

The WISHH Program receives funding from the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) through the Emerging Markets Program (EMP), Market Access Program (MAP), Foreign Market Development Program (FMD), Agriculture Trade Promotion Program (ATP) and the Global Broad-Based Initiative (GBI). WISHH's objective is to increase the international consumption of soy protein in the human, livestock, and aquaculture sectors in new markets and thereby create new opportunities for soybeans and provide higher economic returns to U.S. soybean producers.

IV. SCOPE OF WORK

WISHH seeks to highlight U.S. soy's role in global food security. Engagement in global food security conversations is a win-win for U.S. soybean farmers and the developing and emerging economies in which WISHH works. Work to increase local protein availability (via new soy-based food products, eggs, chicken, fish, etc.) improves access to food and has beneficial effects on soybean prices, the local basis, U.S. soybean carryout stocks and ultimately on U.S. soybean farmer's profitability.

To amplify WISHH's work in developing and emerging markets, WISHH will provide fact-based, non-partial video or written report content for platforms such as USSOY.org, ASA eBean, social and other media outlets, and press releases to news services. Content will showcase project successes and will highlight the impacts of U.S. soy on human health and global food security. Using this content, the consultant will design and implement a communications campaign to ensure that key audiences are fully informed of U.S. soy's commitment to global food security and work in developing and emerging markets.

The role of the consultant will be to design and create cohesive communications materials to distill WISHH messaging around key areas such as grower leader education, engagement, and global food security. The consultant should be familiar with the approval process of the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service as required by the United Soybean Board.

This RFP includes the following deliverables:

- 1) Develop, coordinate, and provide eBean, American Soybean Magazine, QSSB communications and press release materials on WISHH's work in developing and emerging markets and soy's role in global food security.
- 2) Design and create at least six magazine advertisements for placement in state soybean magazines and other domestic and international print materials on WISHH's work in developing and emerging markets and soy's role in global food security and human health.
- 3) Design and create visuals for messages, handouts, and other training materials.
- 4) Produce infographics on soy's role in global food security to be used in social media, conference brochures, conference websites, etc.
- 5) Develop and implement a new section on the WISHH website dedicated to global food security, protein, and soy's role in human health.
- 6) Develop messaging to be utilized in a radio ad campaign on soy's role in global food security and human health.
- 7) Design and create a brochure describing connections between soy family engagement in developing and emerging markets and U.S. soy's overall commitment to global food security.
- 8) Design messaging to be used in a tradeshow booth consistent with WISHH messaging to be used at Commodity Classic and other domestic and international conferences.
- 9) Create at least 20 social media posts with U.S. soy global food security messaging to be used on various platforms.
- 10) Develop messaging to be used by WISHH staff and U.S. soybean farmer leaders during a forum with other global food security thought-leaders at Commodity Classic 2022.
- 11) Develop talking points and work with WISHH staff to develop a strategy to engage soybean farmers in global food security communications efforts.

The developed materials will remain the property of WISHH, may be posted on the WISHH website and will be available for future use.
